Re: Comment on Proposed Amendments

To The Honorable United States Sentencing Commission:

I write to you, in as brief a form as possible, to express my comments on the proposed amendments in the sentencing guidelines. The fact that I am an assistant federal public defender for approximately 13 years makes me both a well informed and biased source, of which I am sure you are cognizant.

I applaud and encourage the thought and effort made to amend the loss tables and deal with the problem of more "than minimal planning" insofar as it has resulted in disparate treatments and a considerable amount of litigation. With respect to the additional issues for comment in this section, I definitely believe that the loss tables should have fewer and larger ranges in the lower ends. The loss tables at the higher ends are so large as to be beyond my experience and have no opinion as to whether they need adjustment.

Although more work would need to be done, I would encourage the Commission to modify the definition and approach to a more than minimal planning enhancement as opposed to building it into the loss table or, alternatively, building it into the loss table further from the bottom ranges, maintaining the lesser enhancement as long as possible and perhaps adding a third and additional level increase at the far end.

With respect to redefining more than minimal planning, I do have some suggestions:

1. Build in a two level decrease for spur of the moment or sudden temptation conduct;

2. Do not provide for multiple victim enhancement until the number of victims has reached an appreciably large level i.e. 15 or 20 and perhaps make this enhancement an additional one or two levels at an additionally large number such as 40 or 50;
3. Require, by example, truly more than the ordinary conduct to commit the offense before an enhancement is added. Few if any types of fraud or theft escape the current definition.

* The proposal with respect to U.S.S.G. § 3B1.2 (role in the offense) is also an improvement. I would suggest option one is the most preferable of the options under Note 7 reading as follows: Option 1 is preferred because it affords the sentencing judge the most flexibility in determining whether or not to apply the two level adjustment for minor role and, unlike option 2, does not repeat the Application Note position contained in Note 8 concerning burden of persuasion.

The firearms amendments are mostly technical and it would be useful for the Commission to have a period where it does not amend the firearms guideline. I do believe that an appropriate differentiation can be made between different weapons including weapons that fall within 26 U.S.C. § 5845 and its various subdivisions. Whether the differentiation should be made by different offense levels, by placement of the sentence within a the guideline range, or by a Commission-guided departure, depends on the weapon involved. It would seem that a fully automatic machine gun is different from a sawed-off shotgun which is different from a sawed-off rifle which is different from other weapons such as tear gas "pen guns," all of which are prohibited in Title 26.

I have no great criticism of the proposed amendment § 3B1.3 abuse of position of special trust or use of special skill. However, perhaps the time has come to separate these two concepts into separate adjustment sections. It would seem to me be best to leave special trust as a Chapter 3 adjustment with appropriate illustrations in the application notes rather than adding it as a specific offense characteristic in a hit or miss fashion to various guidelines relating to fraud or embezzlement or in general to the embezzlement guideline. Certainly the proposed amendment is superior to the additional issue for comment, particularly as it relates to deleting the example regarding "ordinary bank tellers".

The proposal relating to 5K1.1 - issue 24 - will apply to very few cases if it is intended to exclude "crimes of violence" where that concept includes drug offenses. It also has limited usefulness because of the exclusion of anyone who is not a "first offender".

At least it should include all category I offenders and perhaps all category I and category II offenders. The injustice which it is intended to address is not related or necessarily related to whether the defendant is category I or category VI, but the proposal is at least some improvement over the current requirement for a government motion.

I should add with respect to § 5K that I have, as have other attorneys, experienced cases in which this proposed amendment could well have made a difference.

With respect to the proposal number 25 relating to § 6B1.2 the idea is commendable. Perhaps a stronger word than "encourages" should be utilized. I would suggest a policy statement that requires the government to make such the disclosures at either option point and provides as a ground for downward departure the intentional failure of the government to do so. Experiences has taught that toothless platitudes rarely modify prosecutorial behavior in an adversary system.

The Commission should act on issue for comment number 40 relating to the mandatory minimum and distinction between cocaine and cocaine base. Significant support exists not only from the interjection of the Commissions expertise, but also other sectors of the criminal justice system for the elimination of this distinction.

Proposed numbers 44, 45 and 46 are all poor ideas, poor policy, and should not result in favorable action. They would increase unwarranted disparities and would not further the purposes of sentencing indicated by Congress.

Proposal number 57 submitted by the Department of Justice should not be acted upon. It is an attempt to accomplish exactly the opposite of what it purports to do. The Department of Justice obviously intends to utilize its proposed amendment, if it becomes the guideline, as the Commission's position which ought to be followed by the Courts in prohibiting attacks on prior convictions. It is my understanding that the Commission wishes to take no position and allow the courts to develop their own procedures. If the Commission does intend to take a position on this procedural question, it should study the matter, invite additional comment, and it is hoped, ultimately recommended that the courts permit collateral attacks on prior convictions utilized to enhance sentences.

I had promised to make this letter brief. There are many other things I could or should say, but will not. I will say that the last two cycles of amendments have been encouraging insofar as they have addressed problems of harshness and not simply been "fixes" of guidelines which appear to be too low to some other components of the criminal justice system.

Re: 1993 Proposed Amendments

Dear Chairman Wilkins:

I wish you and the Commission and the Judicial Working Group a productive March 8th conference.

I submit herewith comments on the proposed amendments for the 1993 cycle. As always, silence is ambiguous and may signify one or more of the following: approval; no opinion; deference to others more knowledgeable; no experience; no clue. One almost overriding consideration governs my responses: everyone complains when changes occur and therefore only absolutely necessary changes should be made. Those, we recognize by the vague notion of "consensus," untoward appellate attention, and by the insights contained in comments by Sentencing Commission "consumers."

On separate pages, then, numbered to match with the number of the proposed amendment, I comment where (1) I cannot restrain myself; (2) where I feel certain that reasonable minds will differ and I want my vote recorded; (3) where I feel qualified to take issue with the need for any change at all; and, (4) where I disagree for reasons stated.

If any member of the Commission/staff reviewing these remarks wishes further explanation, please call.

Sincerely,

Alicemarie H. Stotler
United States District Judge

Amendments 8, 9, 11, 39, 48, and 60

* The mere existence of all these options suggests that changes concerning greater latitude for minimal criminal participation (and therefore less harsh sentences) and, possibly, a distinction among offenders involved with "less dangerous" types of controlled substance are widely thought to be desirable.

Hearing the discussion of the members of the Working Group is essential to be able to cast a well-informed vote on any of these. At least one, however, seems unnecessary, and that is Amendment 60. One can only infer that "ghost" co-defendants have been invoked so as to justify comparative role status in some single-defendant cases.

Amendments 9 and 39 are more extensive in their reach than Amendment 8, but they are more complicated. If the Working Group concludes that emphasis on the role of firearms is required, then Amendment 9 is on target.

Adoption of Amendment 8 and possibly Amendment 48 would show movement in the apparently desirable direction. We could work with cases under the refined definitions of "mitigated role" defendants and those whose offenses do not concern heroin and cocaine, and see if the goal for more "individualized" sentences might be achieved.

Finally, I find Amendment 11 arbitrary. I think it was meant to be, but I prefer status quo.
