Dear Judge Wilkins:

Re: United States Sentencing Guidelines

I am responding to the invitation of the Sentencing Commission to comment on the proposed amendments to the Guidelines and the proposals of various groups. I have served as a state court trial judge for five years and a federal district court judge for 15 years in a metropolitan area. Hence, I bring to my work a fair understanding of the best and worst of both criminal justice systems in reviewing the Proposed Guideline Amendments. In my judgment, the federal sentencing guidelines are inferior to the state court guidelines in Pennsylvania, and therefore I have scanned the Proposed Amendments in an attempt to select the amendments that will improve the federal sentencing scheme.

Proposed Guideline Amendment No. 1, Pg. No. 1 should be adopted as urged by the Practitioners Advisory Group in Option 1 at Pg. 56. Most citizens and virtually every juror would be shocked to learn that a court is required to include conduct in the sentencing equation that their representatives have found not proven by the prosecution. In addition, any exception to a complete bar of such evidence strikes most informed observers as unfair and one-sided. Prior to the guidelines, federal trial judges did not consider acquitted conduct at the time of sentencing, and the supporters of the guidelines have failed to sustain their burden of proving that § 1B1.3, as constituted, has had any deterrent effect upon aberrant conduct, or has promoted uniformity in sentencing.

Proposed Guideline Amendment No. 10, Pg. 20 should be adopted to promote uniformity of law and introduce common sense in a difficult area of sentencing. The inclusion of uningestible mixtures in the weight of a controlled substance promotes public cynicism and contempt by the offender. It also leads to grossly disproportionate sentences in certain cases and therefore undermines the foundation on which the guidelines are bottomed.

* Proposed Amendments 29 and 30 (Judicial Conference) are long overdue. The members of the Commission and staff are fond of stating at various Circuit Judicial Conferences and in other fora that departures are authorized in appropriate cases under the guidelines. The courts of appeals are often blamed by members of the Commission for being too rigid in interpreting the departure provisions. The Criminal Law Committee of the Judicial Conference has now provided the Sentencing Commission with the opportunity to stand up and be counted on this issue.

Proposed Amendments 31, 32 and 33 (American Bar Association) are progressive proposals that recognize that prisons are limited resources that should be reserved for the most serious offenders. They also recognize that for many non-violent offenders there are effective alternative sentences. For many years prior to the guidelines, I kept a record concerning the number of offenders that violated a probationary sentence. The number of violators totalled 15%. This means that 85% of the defendants did not violate probation and for these offenders a non-prison sentence was successful, effective and obviously less expensive.

Proposed Amendments 37 and 38 (Practitioners Advisory Group) are sensible and deserve adoption. They advance uniformity of application and fairness for offenders who do not profit from an offense. This is especially important for non-violent offenders for whom alternatives to total confinement may be entirely appropriate.

Amendment No. 40 (Practitioners Advisory Group) correctly captures the disparate impact of the guidelines upon minorities. The 100 to 1 quantity ratio is irrational and leads to unfair sentences. Quantity based sentencing involving crack cocaine produces sentences, in many cases, that are harsh, have no deterrent impact and are grossly disproportionate. The same reasoning applies to Amendment No. 50 (Federal Offenders Legislative Subcommittee). Congress could not have intended such results.

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to comment on the matters pending before the Sentencing Commission.

Yours very truly,

Donald E. Ziegler

Re: 1993 Proposed Amendments

Dear Chairman Wilkins:

I wish you and the Commission and the Judicial Working Group a productive March 8th conference.

I submit herewith comments on the proposed amendments for the 1993 cycle. As always, silence is ambiguous and may signify one or more of the following: approval; no opinion; deference to others more knowledgeable; no experience; no clue. One almost overriding consideration governs my responses: everyone complains when changes occur and therefore only absolutely necessary changes should be made. Those, we recognize by the vague notion of "consensus," untoward appellate attention, and by the insights contained in comments by Sentencing Commission "consumers."

On separate pages, then, numbered to match with the number of the proposed amendment, I comment where (1) I cannot restrain myself; (2) where I feel certain that reasonable minds will differ and I want my vote recorded; (3) where I feel qualified to take issue with the need for any change at all; and, (4) where I disagree for reasons stated.

If any member of the Commission/staff reviewing these remarks wishes further explanation, please call.

Sincerely,

Alicemarie H. Stotler
United States District Judge

Amendments 29 and 30

* Amendment 29 presents this direct question to the Sentencing Commission: do you want to be more popular with the federal judiciary? Then, adopt the proposed third paragraph for § 5H1.1. Do you wish, instead, to declare a national policy for sentencing offenders and punishing offenses on an objective basis? Then turn down this amendment.

Unpopular though it is, I decline to endorse the JCUS Committee's suggestion. Every judge's sense of justice is different and will predictably vary given even the same case. Every judge notes these "5H" factors anyway but may or may not let them sway her/him. When the factors mount up to that judge's threshold, then that judge is already departing anyway. While I tend to agree with Judge Becker that perhaps judges erroneously feel that they are restrained from departing when they might wish, this amendment does not provide a "remedy."

Amendment 30 should likewise be rejected.

Dear Sentencing Commission:

I have reviewed with great interest your 1993 Proposed Amendments to the Sentencing Guidelines. The opportunity to express my concerns, on a few of the proposed amendments, is greatly appreciated. This particular group of amendments addresses several important areas:

A. Relevant Conduct: Amendments #1 and 35 propose two different ways to deal with acquitted conduct. Amendment #35, option 1, proposes a total ban on the use of acquitted conduct. I personally favor this approach. In addition to my personal preference, this is an area that I have discussed with numerous people. Lawyers and non-lawyers alike are often shocked when they learn that conduct, for which a defendant is acquitted, can still be used as relevant conduct. It is fundamental to our system of justice that persons acquitted of criminal charges are not directly or indirectly punished for that conduct.

B. Substantial Assistance: Amendments #24, 31, and 47 suggest several ways to change the current system for determining when substantial assistance has been rendered. This is an area which should be decided by the sentencing court after the government has had an opportunity to state its position. Without question the government's position should be given careful consideration but the ultimate decision should be the court's. It has been my experience that "substantial assistance" varies from one U.S. Attorney's Office to the next and even from one AUSA to the next. Also based on my experiences the decision not to move for a downward departure, based on substantial assistance, has occasionally been arbitrary.

* C. Specific Offender Characteristics: Amendment # 29 would give the sentencing courts some flexibility in fashioning an appropriate sentence. While uniformity is an important objective, it should not be the only consideration.

D. Sentencing Options; Non-violent, first offenders: Amendment # 32 would also give sentencing courts more flexibility. Of the two options suggested in this amendment, it seems that an additional ground for departure would be the most effective way to reach this type of offender.

While many other proposed amendments are equally deserving of comment, I am going to limit myself to the four listed above. If the Commission wishes for any additional input from me I am available at your convenience.

Sincerely yours,

KENNETH F. IRVINE, JR.
